

POLITICAL ORGANS NOTIFIED BY PARTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE TO JOIN CULTURAL REVOLUTION

Following is a translation of a news item in the Chinese-language newspaper Kung-jen Jih-pao (Worker's Daily), Peiping, 5 Jun 66, p 1.

The Industrial and Communications Political Department of the Central Committee of Chinese Communist party has issued a circular recently calling on political organs at all levels to resolutely implement the pertinent directive of the Central Committee by mobilizing and organizing the broad mass of staff and workers to hold high the great red banner of Mao Tse-tung's ideology and to actively participate in the great socialist cultural revolution under the leadership of their respective party committees. The circular says it is necessary to regard the great cultural revolution as the central work on the current industrial and communications front as well as to place this great cultural revolution before any other work.

The circular says a great socialist cultural revolution is being developed resoundingly on a nationwide scope. This great cultural revolution is an extremely sharp and violent class struggle to build up the proletariat and to eliminate the bourgeoisie. It is exerting an overwhelming force to wipe out all the devils. This great revolution is one which touches the deepest recess of the human soul. This great revolution is the struggle to shatter the plot of capitalist restoration and to eradicate the roots of revisionism politically, ideologically and organizationally. It is the struggle to defend Chairman Mao and the party Central Committee as well as to defend Mao Tse-tung's ideology. This great revolution is a foremost event which concerns our party and state, as well as the destiny and future of the entire world revolution. Thus, the cultural revolution is the most important and most urgent combative task in stressing politics. It is necessary to regard the great cultural revolution as the central work on the current industrial and communications front as well as to place it before any other work.

The circular calls on political organs at all levels to resolutely implement the pertinent directive of the Central Committee by mobilizing and organizing the broad mass of staff and workers to hold high the great red banner of Mao Tse-tung's ideology and to actively participate in this great revolutionary struggle, thereby pushing the great cultural revolution to the end. In this revolutionary struggle, it is necessary not only to thoroughly destroy the large and small "Three Family Villages," to thoroughly defeat the antiparty and antisocialist bourgeois representative characters and the bourgeois "scholars and authorities," thereby repressing the vicious style of the bourgeoisie, but also to push the mass movement on studying and applying Chairman Mao's works flexibly to a new and higher stage of development so that the invincible spiritual weapon of Mao Tse-tung's ideology will be better grasped by the broad masses and the great Mao Tse-tung ideology will command everything and truly occupy all fronts.
