

ACTIVITIES OF CAPITAL SCHOOL NO. 81

Following is a translation of an article by the Joint Headquarters of the Revolutionary Rebels of Mao Tse-tung's Thought, Capital School No. 81, in the Chinese language newspaper, Ch'un Lei (Spring Thunder), No. 8, Peking, 10 June 1967, p. 4.]

Where should students participating in the "Joint Action Committee" or influenced by its reactionary thoughts go? Our great leader and the Central Cultural Revolutionary Committee have long ago pointed out the direction. At present, the state of affairs in our school is such: part of the students are sincerely returning to Chairman Mao's revolutionary line; others are still on the fence; and still others are insisting on their reactionary stand. The following is a disclosure of our school's recent situation for the reader's reference and analysis.

In alliance with the workers and peasants. Chairman Mao said: "What is the criterion to determine whether or not a young person is revolutionary? What is the criterion to distinguish him from others? There is only one criterion, namely, whether or not he is willing to ally himself with the broad masses of the workers and peasants and whether or not he is actually doing it..." "The countryside is a vast world. There we can do a great deal."

In accordance with Chairman Mao's teachings, the father of a student, Li Nai-min (2621 6621 ㄣ), had the courage to send his own daughter to settle down in a rural village and to send his own son to work in a rural village, because he knew that his children were growing up in a large city, unaware of the difficulties of making a living, and had in fact some thought to enjoy privileges. He said to his children: "Don't rely upon your old father. Go out and train yourselves." This father also said sincerely to a comrade of our headquarters: "We grew up in a laboring people's family and therefore cannot let our children depart from the laboring people and become the seeds of revisionism."

Li Nai-min and his sister, Li Nai-li (2621 6621 0500), have been in the rural village for several months. They have become activists of the rural youth in criticizing the black essay on the "Cultivation of the Mind." Having lived in the rural village for several months, they personally experienced the hardships of life.

New students criticizing the ideas of the Joint Action Committee. After returning to the school, some students began to make serious study of Chairman Mao's works. They directed the point of their spear toward Liu and Teng, toward the "Joint Action Committee" and its reactionary ideas. They wrote wall posters criticizing the reactionary ideas of the Joint Action Committee, expressing their deep hatred for those acts of beating and looting, and denouncing the ridiculous "theory of revolutionary blood relationships."

Anonymous letters. The Joint Headquarters of the Revolutionary Rebels in our school recently received such a letter: Its writer is called "7434 (ch'i-szu san-szu) Army Unit." The letter says: "Rascals of the Joint Headquarters: The children of the revolutionary cadres and soldiers cannot be easily disturbed. You sonofbitches blindly attempted to overthrow the heaven!...It is precisely our intention to come back into power. Our daring act to destroy the old and to establish the new has shocked the entire world. It is unpleasant to beat you off and on. Who dares to say that this is a bloody debt! We did not beat you in the destruction of the four old. Therefore, you remain such crazy. What we owe you is beating! Someday, we'll beat you to pieces!!! Don't think that you are now happy with your disturbing acts. After few days, we'll liquidate the account...It is precisely because our blood relationships are noble!..."

Continued beating and looting. The objects damaged on the scene of the "Joint Action Committee's" exhibition were further damaged by some persons. A television which had been damaged by an element of the Joint Action Committee was later stolen by a thief, who destroyed the remaining parts of the television. Members of the Joint Action Committee stole and destroyed instruments of fire prevention in the school. Many beds and the brass handles of students' desks were damaged. Because these things were not completely destroyed, they became waste stuffs. Members of the Joint Action Committee can sell these things to purchasing stations and use the money they obtain from the selling for their own purposes.

A small hand-push cart was found stolen and destroyed. Other public property, such as parts of bicycles and shoes, was also found stolen. At present, it is impossible to compile a complete set of statistical figures:

Hsiang X X, a newly released looter, remains ignoring the Sixteen Articles. On May 10, he assaulted a revolutionary teacher, X X X, without any reason.

A thief calling on others to catch a "thief." Recently, there appeared a wall poster in our school, seemingly exposing the "Joint Action Committee." Its title reads as follows: "An Inside Story About the Activities of the Joint Action Committee in Our School." Its author's name is "Chin Hou (Golden Monkey)." Was the author trying to expose the Joint Action Committee? By no means. The wall poster interpreted the criticism of the reactionary ideas of the Joint Action Committee as "denial of the great direction of the Red Guards." It described the rebels of our school as "former hooligans who are now wearing left-wing uniforms, penetrating into the rebelling organizations, and looting dormitories. These elements of the Joint Action Committee..." Obviously, the wall poster is referring to the investigation of their beatings and lootings by the security section of our rebelling organization. They hated our revolutionary acts. For this reason, they created rumors to hurt us. They are the thieves. However, they call on others to catch "thieves." They have turned the matter upside down.

The deep hatred for rebels. Someone wrote the following words on a wall: "Huang X X, be careful!" Afterwards, it was found that a fine door was damaged by thirty three holes. What is the matter? It is because they deeply hated Huang X X, a combat soldier of our Rebellng Headquarters. In order to express their hatred, they used a football as Huang X X and savagely hit the ball with a training knife for about thirty to forty times. In consequence, they damaged the public property.

"Seizing the right to succeed." Recently, the "Golden Monkey" threw out another wall poster, entitled "Battle in the Blood for the Purpose of Seizing the Right to Succeed!" The poster did not mention a single word about the struggle against the Party persons who are in power and taking the capitalist road. It did not mention the seizure of their power. It did not mention the need to use Mao Tse-tung's thought to reform ourselves and to arm ourselves. Instead, it talked a great deal about "hatred" and "Battle in the Blood." May we ask: Whom do you hate? With whom are you battling in the blood? From whom do you seize the right to succeed? The poster said: "We are the legitimate successors to the proletarian revolutionary enterprises." "After twenty years, who is to decide the fate of the world? We are going to decide it! We! We!" In the poster, it was again emphasized: "This is legitimate."

May we ask: Without reforming thoughts, without studying Mao's works, without participating in the criticism of the reactionary ideas of the Joint Action Committee, and without joining the struggle, the criticism and the reform, how can you be qualified to be the "legitimate" successors to the proletarian revolution? By virtue of what right can you seize the right to succeed from others? Can you do this really on the basis of your "noble blood relationships"? We advise these people to study, first of all, the five conditions of Chairman Mao for the successors! Otherwise, after a long crazy day, you will be still in a day dream.

Accusation of a wall poster criticizing the ideas of the Joint Action Committee. A wall poster which criticized the reactionary ideas of the Joint Action Committee rather moderately, was ironically violently attacked by a small number of persons. This shows that the poster touched their dirty souls. The wall poster wrote that the influence of Liu-Teng's ideas over society, family, and school is the cause of the emergence of the Joint Action Committee and its ideas. A number of persons used their fountain pens and wrote the following words on the poster: "Teachers of the Joint Action Committee trained its members. However, the author of this poster shouted: 'Where is the thief?' He said this in order to get away from his responsibility." Others openly wrote: "X X X (the rebelling group--note by the author) is the great supporter of the Joint Action Committee behind the scene." Still others wrote: "The number of the foregoing teachers (referring to members of the privileged stratum, such as those sitting in sedan automobiles) is not small. Some of the students came from that group." Throughout their comment, they directed the point of their spear toward the rebelling group without mentioning a single word about the handful of Party persons (Liu and Teng) who are in power and taking the capitalist road. Does this question deserve our deep thinking?

Forgery of documents. Ch'en X X, a student of our school, is not a member of the Joint Action Committee. Until recently, however, he made by himself a sleeve-badge of the Joint Action Committee, forged documents, privately carved an official seal, and appointed himself principal of the middle school subordinated to the Normal College. In order to facilitate his activity and to cheat others, he obtained, by dishonest means and at the expense of the great People's Liberation Army, from an Army unit a badge for the Liberation Army's cap and a badge for the Army's uniform. Wearing these badges, he changed his name to Shao Chen-shan (1421 2182 1472). (According to his own explanation, the name means a young person shaking the world.) In addition, he forged three documents in order to show off and to cheat others.

Breaking into a garage to get an automobile. At four o'clock in the early morning of May 29, Lo X X and others who insisted on the reactionary stand of the Joint Action Committee (only recently released from a prison sentence on charge of stealing the rebelling group's motor cycles and automobiles) secretly broke into a garage and drove out a large truck. Thus, they seriously violated state law. Upon learning the information, a soldier of our rebelling headquarters rushed to the scene and stood in front of the truck in order to stop them. However, individual coeds nearby the truck shouted: "Hit him to death!" On the other hand, Lo X X found no reason to explain. He destroyed the parts in the driver's compartment and then got away.

Some of Lo's associates described students belonging to the revolutionary rebelling group as the "degenerated" children of the cadres. Furthermore, they declared that "We will seize your power!"
